- Certification has begun in all “EPR-Communities”
- But: The process is taking longer than expected
- High demands → "quality" comes before “speed”
- No nationwide launch possible in April 2020
- Gradual introduction expected until autumn 2020

Fields of action of the Swiss eHealth Strategy 2.0

Field of Action 1:

Promoting digitalisation

"Digital applications in the healthcare system, especially the Electronic Patient Record, are established."

Field of Action 2:

Coordinate digitalisation

"Digitalisation in the health care system is coordinated and enables multiple use of data and infrastructures."

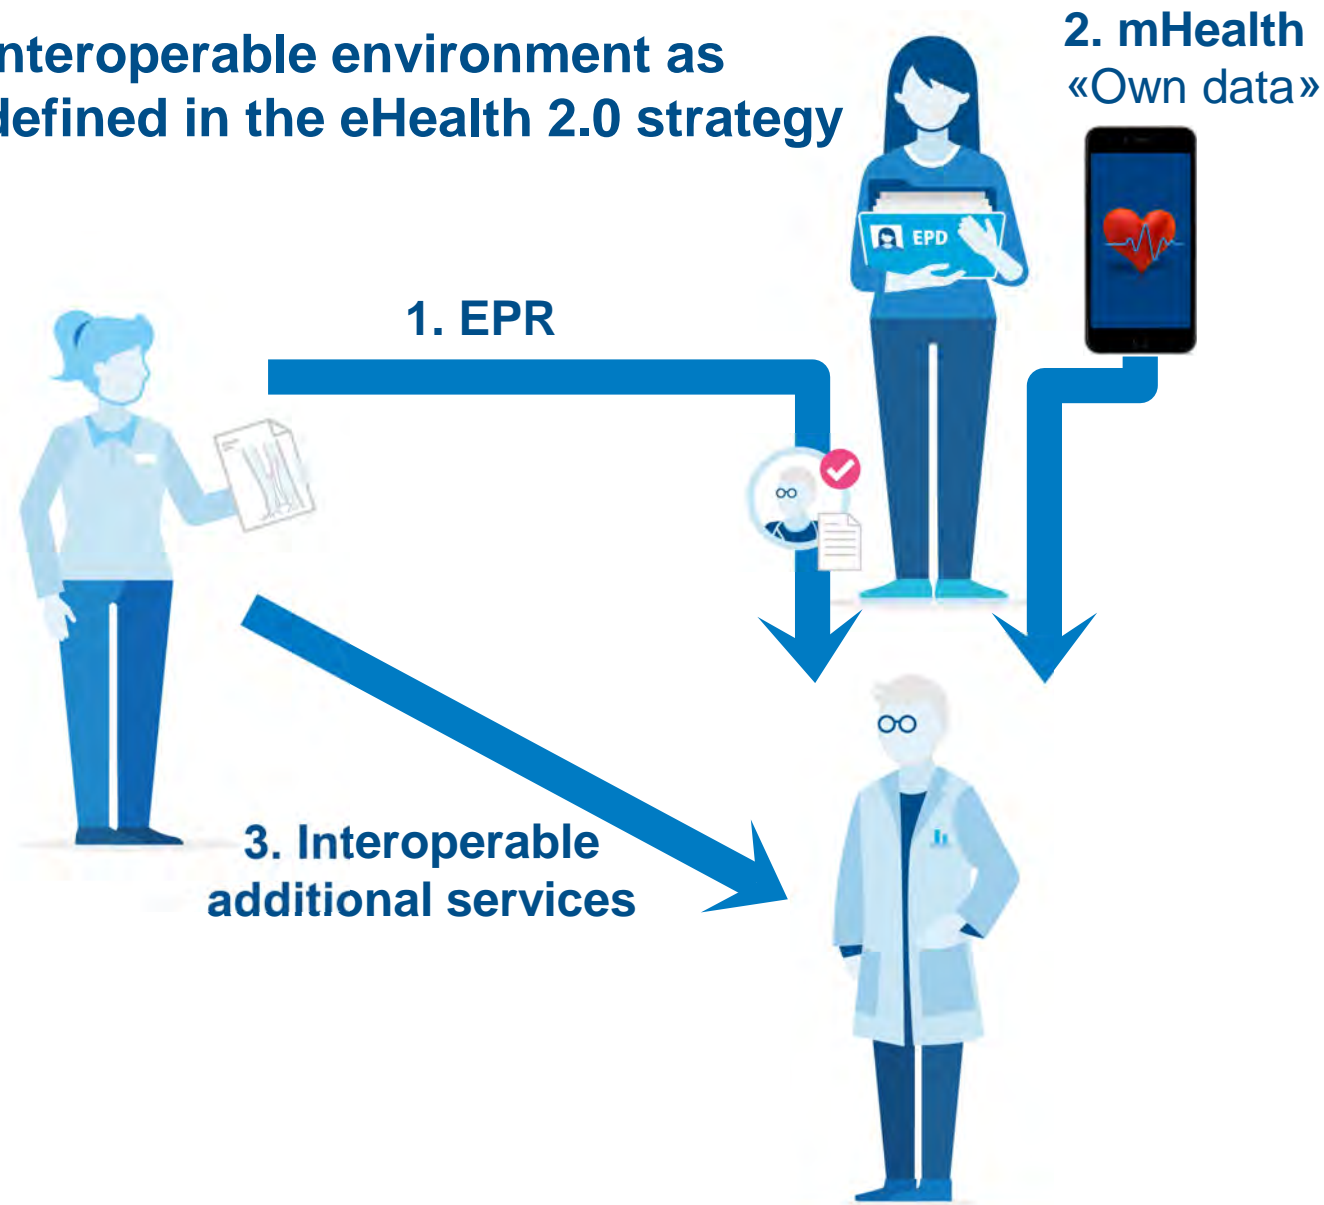

Field of Action 3:

Enable for digitalisation

"People in Switzerland are digitally competent and can handle digital health data in a responsible and risk-aware manner."

Interoperable environment as defined in the eHealth 2.0 strategy

1. EPR

Health professionals store documents in the EPR, patients give access rights.

2. mHealth

Patients store information from a mobile application (mHealth) as “Own data” in the EPR.

3. Interoperable additional services of «EPR-Communities»

Interoperable information exchange between health professionals throughout Switzerland (e.g. direct transmission)

Study: Digital transformation succeeds...

- ✓ First: An effective strategy based on objectives shared by the main actors.
- ✓ Second: Political leadership through clear objectives.
- ✓ Third: Coordinating bodies in the form of national, politically anchored digital health agencies, especially for the critical area of standardization.

Initial situation in 2007

"Turn those affected into participants"

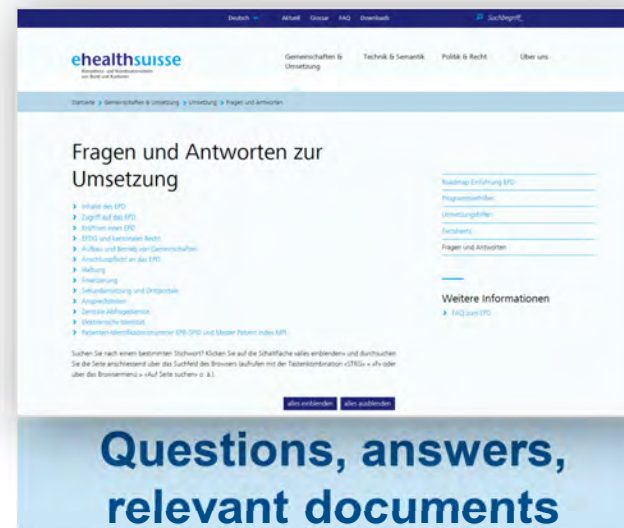

Offensive involvement of the key players (before the law project)

The law for a nationwide Electronic Patient Record (EPR) was adopted by parliament in June 2015:

- Council of States (Ständerat): 45 to 0 votes
- National Council (Nationalrat): 189 to 5 votes

The pros and cons of federated eHealth

Advantages

- ✓ Regional autonomy, integration and identification (eHealth is a cultural project)
- ✓ Regional start before national readiness
- ✓ Regions can implement additional services
- ✓ No huge national project with excessive risks

Disadvantages

- ✓ The national consensus is slow
- ✓ Use cases are complex
- ✓ Infrastructure is expensive
- ✓ Regional goals may differ - considerable effort to coordinate the objectives
